

Disclaimer

We provide informative articles, videos, and social media posts that contain information about immigration law that may or may not be relevant to your particular case. However, none of this information should be considered as legal advice for your particular situation unless you have consulted with one of our attorneys to make sure that you have all the information that is relevant to you. Immigration law is highly complex and changes often and rapidly. You should always consult an attorney before relying on information on the internet to take action in your personal life. Consulting an attorney ensures that all relevant information is considered and also ensures that the information you are relying on is up to date. Do not rely on information published online by us or any other legal service provider without getting tailored advice for your personal situation.

We expressly disclaim any liability arising out of circumstances where a decision is made based on our online content without a full consultation with an attorney regarding the matter.